- Scheduled 2014 ACTFL presenter
- Experienced world language specialist
- Educational consultant
- Provider of educational resources
- Educational blogger
- Blackbox Podcast creator

What participants will get for attending:

- Engaging lesson ideas
- Better understanding of communicative functions
- An overview of proficiency
- A network of teachers with a common goal
- Professional Growth Points
- Lunch

What participants might bring:

- Laptop
- Google Drive account
- Your textbook (if you use one)
- Your scope and sequence

You tell your students to speak in the target language, and they eagerly begin the task, totally in the target language, right? Maybe not!

You want your students to speak the language at all levels of language learning, but it seems impossible. You need to know it is possible, you just need some ideas.

With some schools adopting new textbooks, right now is a great opportunity for a new engaging curriculum that builds communicative functions.

Whether you've already taken a big leap towards a proficiency classroom or are confused about what it is, this is a workshop for teacher learners.
